

REPUBLICANS TO BATTLE AGAINST TARIFF MEASURE

Senator McNary Plans To Call Party Conference

Washington, May 1.—(P)—The conclusion of Senate committee hearings on the reciprocal tariff bill today found Senate Republicans busy mapping strategy intended to present a virtually united opposition to the measure.

Senator McNary of Oregon, the Republican leader, said he planned a party conference this week similar to that held by the Democrats last night.

In advance of this meeting, however, Senator Hatfield, (R., W. Va.), assailed in a Senate speech the proposal to give President Roosevelt power to negotiate tariff treaties.

Privately, Republican leaders agreed the Democrats had more than enough votes to approve the bill and that from two to six Republicans would be for it on final passage.

Limit Power. Their tentative campaign of opposition included a strenuous attempt to limit the executive power through amendments, one of which would prevent him from lowering duties on any farm commodity.

McNary indicated no filibuster against the measure was contemplated by the Republicans.

He said the administration amendment, which Chairman Harrison of the Senate finance committee is drafting to give industries and others affected a chance to be heard before any slash in duties, "was a step in the right direction but it doesn't go far enough."

McNary said the change—as he understood it—would give the president the power to fix the rules for the hearings and that they would not be public.

Hatfield said "the requests by the president for plenary powers in the tariff bill justify the assertions of those who contend the presidency is fast degenerating into a dictatorship."

With Democratic forces consolidated at the party gathering last night, Senator Harrison, (D., Miss.), today carried the open discussion of the bill before his committee. He plans to report the measure, already passed by the House, to the Senate Thursday.

ATTACK VALIDITY OF GRAND JURY

Springfield, Ill., May 1.—(P)—Attacking the validity of the January Cook county grand jury, Roy Jett and Steve McDermott today appealed to the supreme court from convictions for robbery with a gun.

Jett and McDermott based their appeals on the Lieber decision at the February term which invalidated the method used in choosing any Cook county grand jury.

The pair is under sentence to one year to life in the penitentiary. At their trial in the Cook county criminal court, they withdrew a guilty plea and entered a motion to quash the indictment which enables them to take advantage of the Lieber decision.

Their appeal will be heard at the June term of court.

KILLED BY TRUCK

East St. Louis, Ill., May 1.—(P)—A man believed to be Ray Flood of Lebanon, Ill., was killed today when he was run over by a 5-ton truck on U. S. highway 50, near French Village.

Frank Ash, driver, said the man was sitting on a bridge railing as the truck approached and evidently attempted to leap on.

Hijackers Kidnap Farmer, Steal His Hogs And Calves

Chicago, May 1.—(P)—Albert Walters, Thomson, Ill., farmer, reported to police tonight that he had been kidnaped early today by three men, two of them negroes, who made away with his truck load of livestock valued at $450.

The hijacking, he said, occurred midway between Elsin and Chicago. One of the men, he said, made away with the truck and the other two took him in their car, driving him about all day and finally releasing him here. The truck contained 12 hogs, two cows and three calves.

U. S. FOREIGN TRADE HANGS IN BALANCE

Secretary Roper Says Natural Channel Is Clogged

Washington, May 1.—(P)—America's foreign trade future was described tonight by Secretary Roper as virtually "hanging in the balance."

Addressing the American section of the International Chamber of Commerce, a part of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States convention, Roper said the "natural channel on international trade is clogged and closed through man-made barriers and restrictions."

"This," he said, "results from improper mental attitudes, uncontrolled greed, and the revival of prejudices that have come down through the ages."

"The consequence of such artificial restrictions is the further strangling of an already declining international trade."

Discussing the necessity of working out trade agreements quickly and with a view to creating exchanges of goods, the secretary of commerce said:

Ability To Pay "Realism must be the basis of our foreign trade philosophy. We must recognize that foreigners must not alone be able to buy our products, but they must also be able to pay for them x x x"

Meanwhile, trade association executives were told in another part of the convention that one of their number had approached an NRA official and promised to make him rich if he would engage with them in some industry organization "racket" and that most of the so-called registration in codes has been put there by business' own efforts.

The statements were made by Wilson Compton, NRA trade association chief, and W. Averell Harriman, special NRA assistant administrator, before the session of the American Trade Association executives.

Compton, himself a prominent trade association man who is leaving NRA soon to return to association work, said:

"In the short time in which I have been serving in NRA as chief of trade associations or in connection with code authority organization I have been on three separate occasions approached by men evidently connected with some associations and obviously ambitious for more, who promised to make me 'rich' if I would engage with them in some industry organization 'racket' which would clearly have involved a betrayal of the faith and trust without which no man has a right to accept a public office."

In a separate statement to newspapers tonight, Compton said he did not mean there had been an outright attempt at bribery.

"The National Recovery Administration," he said, "has taken pride in the fact that throughout the period of its activity it has been notably free from such taint."

Harriman, discussing the restrictive features in codes, said:

"Nothing is done except on the request and insistence of industry. NRA has been put in the position of fighting industry to prevent it from giving up self-government."

"Business men must realize that they cannot have certain provisions without accepting government supervision. We do not force these provisions into codes, but when they do go in by industry's demand, industry and business must accept a certain amount of regulation in the public interest."

Of a similar nature were remarks by Donald R. Rieberg, NRA chief counsel, who told the executives that code provisions which had possible monopolistic tendencies required government control to prevent such tendencies from infringing on the public's rights.

Harriman and Compton warned about too much criticism of NRA.

ARREST SUSPECTS

Vincennes, Ind., May 1.—(P)—Two men who are believed to have held up the Indiana Loan company at Terre Haute shortly before noon were captured here this afternoon after a running fight with police.

One of the men is in a serious condition from bullet wounds and the other was injured when their car was wrecked. Approximately $700, the amount taken in the Terre Haute robbery, was found in possession of the two.

The wounded man gave his name as Joe Brown, age 23. Police, however, said they believed him to be John Ryan of Clinton, Ind.

The second man refused to identify himself.

ABDUCTORS OF JUNE ROBLES KEEP SILENT

Relatives Of Child Ready To Pay Big Ransom

Tucson, Ariz., May 1.—(P)—The family of June Robles watched the hours drag by today without producing a word or sign that the little girl still was alive or that her kidnapers were ready to accept $15,000 ransom.

Gloom and hope held sway alternately as Bernabe Robles, grandfather and Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Robles, the parents, waited for the abductors to transmit answer to four intimate questions that could come only from the lips of the girl or a member of the immediate family.

Public Appeal In a public appeal to the abductors to make arrangements for negotiations and delivery of the demanded, the father propounded the questions in the hope that the kidnapers would show them to 6-year-old June and relay the answers as proof that she still lived. They were:

"What do you do with your bunnies in the morning?"

"What do you call Corney?"

"What is the name of Betina's maid?"

"Where is your little box with the key in it?"

The father also requested that the abductors send him a piece of little June's dress as further evidence.

In view of the Robles appeal assuring the abductors all federal, state, city and county officers had been ordered to step aside, leaving the family a free hand to negotiate, Robles expressed the hope that the kidnapers would become convinced of the sincerity of the capitulation.

Members of the family indicated that they did not expect an immediate answer.

10 PERCENT EXTRA INCOME TAX VOTED DOWN BY SENATORS

New Revenue Bill Within One Step Of White House

Washington, May 1.—(P)—The house late today voted down the ten percent extra income tax proposed by the senate and accepted the other changes a conference committee had worked out.

By its two rapid-fire votes on these proposals, it sent the $417,000,000 new revenue bill to within one step of the white house. Only senate approval of the conference changes is necessary to complete congressional action.

The ten percent extra tax which would have been added to all incomes was estimated to be capable of producing $55,000,000 a year.

It was assailed by Republicans but favored by some Democrats, led by Representatives (Malley, D. Wis.) and Trux (D. Ohio). They argued that those able to contribute to the support of the government should pay.

The conference report was accepted by 253 to 106 and the ten percent extra tax proposal voted down by 283 to 77.

Party lines were broken on the adoption of the conference report. Twenty-nine Democrats were among those voting against it; fourteen Republicans and five Farmer-Laborites for.

Advocates of the Couzens amendments contended the $55,000,000 additional revenue it would produce was needed to help meet the vast appropriations made by this congress.

The attack on the conference report was led by Representatives Treadway of Massachusetts and Bacharach of New Jersey, Republican conferees, who refused to sign the document. They said the house representatives have surrendered to the senate.

Treadway said the bill as originally passed by the house was for the purpose of plugging up loopholes in the income tax law but that it would have produced $263,000,000 "which was several millions more than the administration asked for."

"The senate bill," he said, "which was the basis of the conference, goes far beyond these stopgaps and places an entirely unnecessary burden on the taxpayers."

"I see no reason for this tremendous tax levy when indications are pointing to business recovery, x x x"

Bacharach said "we were told by the senate conferees that additional revenue was made necessary by reason of the passage of the independent offices appropriation bill over the president's veto, increasing government salaries and increasing compensation and pension payments to our war veterans."

He added that these totaled $166,712,500 and "to meet that increase in current expenditures, the distinguished body at the other end of the capitol increase our federal tax burden by $214,000,000."

MENTAL IMBECILE

Wapello, Iowa, May 1.—(P)—Eddie Tallent, St. Louis, charged with the murder of Martin Wolz, was cast as a moral and mental imbecile, with the mental capacity of a child of six years, by Dr. W. C. Magnus, chief psychiatrist of the State hospital at Mt. Pleasant, when he took the stand in district court today.

World-Wide Celebrations of "May Day" Bring Disorders, Bloodshed and Many Riots

Decatur Man Pays His Taxes, Drops Dead In Office

Decatur, Ill., May 1.—(P)—Irven J. Heckel paid his taxes, then dropped dead in the county treasurer's office today. A heart attack was believed to have been the cause of the death.

JOHN DILLINGER IS BELIEVED TO BE IN ST. PAUL

Bullet-Riddled Car Speeds Thru Twin Cities

Chicago, May 1.—(P)—While a close search was kept up in Chicago for John Dillinger a bullet-riddled automobile reported to seen speeding through St. Paul today caused the eyes of the Dillinger hunt to be turned once more on the Minnesota city.

The sparsity of Dillinger reports led authorities here to believe that either the desperado and his followers had holted up some place or that the hysteria which followed the sensational escape of the Dillinger gang from a federal police trap at Little Bohemia, Wis., had subsided.

Reduce Bonds The bullet pierced car was reported about the time Federal Judge M. M. Joyce was reducing from $50,000 to $20,000 the bail of Dr. Clayton May, Minneapolis physician, and his nurse, Mrs. Augusta Salt, held on federal charges of harboring John Dillinger.

The doctor and nurse are accused of having treated Dillinger for gun shot wounds in the leg sustained in a battle with federal agents in St. Paul apartment March 31. The doctor has asserted he was kidnaped, held prisoner four days and forced to treat the wounded bandit chief.

The car which aroused the suspicions of St. Paul police was a gray (Studebaker) sedan with a Minnesota license. It had bullet holes in the windshield, the rear window and the left rear portion of the body.

At St. Antonio, meanwhile, federal agents said George (Babyface) Nelson, Dillinger killer, had been positively identified as the "Jimmy Williams" to whom H. L. Leban, Texas gunsmith shipped five machine guns to last October. The weapons were sent to Minneapolis.

With Nelson on visits to St. Antonio, a department of justice agent said, were Homer Van Meter and Tommie Carroll, known as Dillinger gangsters, and H. L. Keith, now under sentence in Wisconsin for post office robbery. Others with Nelson were a man named Neley and a Tom McGannon.

Leban is now under $2,000 bond on a charge of receiving and retaining a government pistol. He identified a picture of Nelson as the man he knew as "Williams."

SUPERANNUATION OF BISHOP CANNON IS RECOMMENDED

Veteran Dry Crusader Is Given Ovation At Conference

Jackson, Miss., May 1.—(P)—The long reported move in the Methodist Episcopal church, South, to retire militant Bishop James Cannon, Jr., at this time, four years ahead of his automatic retirement under the age limit rule, came to a head today.

Almost simultaneously with a thunderous ovation accorded the veteran dry crusader on the floor of the church's general conference, in quadrennial session here, members of the committee on Episcopacy disclosed that the committee had recommended his superannuation by a vote of 43 to 28.

Word of the vote spread among the merchants fast on the heels of Bishop Cannon's first appearance on the speaking stand where as head of the important church board on temperance and social service he called on Methodism to fall in behind a campaign for a new federal prohibition law and challenged the church to make the wet and dry issue a test for every candidate seeking election to the national congress.

Round after round of sustained applause swept the conference hall as he came forward and explained that his appearance at the conference had been "unavoidably delayed." He therewith made no reference to his trial in Washington which was underway when the conference opened and which resulted in his acquittal on charges of conspiracy to violate the corrupt practices act in connection with anti-A Smith activities in 1928.

Speaking with characteristic vigor, the 69-year old bishop told the conference in his temperance report today that he blamed "the downfall of prohibition on the shocking failure of the federal government to enforce the prohibition law, lack of state co-operation, the Catholic hierarchy and the wet press."

By the Associated Press

World-wide celebrations of May Day brought disorders, bloodshed, riots, and milder demonstrations despite careful police precautions.

Shootings, occurred in the United States, Cuba, and Austria that claimed casualties. A short-lived riot broke out after a communist mass meeting near Paris, when 1,500 reds sought to march on the capital.

At Lake Charles, La., one man was seriously hurt when 15 shots were fired into a meeting of 300 striking longshoremen. Communists were held responsible for the burning of the famous Singer Hall in Augsburg, Germany, scene of Adolf Hitler's early attempts to raise a following.

In Havana bullets fired from house-tops into a parade of 10,000 communists killed one man and wounded six others, and created a bedlam while authorities used tear-gas guns and the marchers scurried for shelter.

Communists accused ABC secret society members of firing the shots; police declared communists had done so to provoke disorders.

In many places military and police chiefs had girded themselves for disorders in view of fiery manifestoes and alleged revolutionary plots. In these localities the day passed comparatively quietly.

This is now the world observed May day.

Oviedo, Spain—Eleven were injured when civil guards charged into rioting socialists and communists; the few shops that remained opened were stormed by demonstrators. A mob attacked headquarters of the popular Agrarian faction.

Paris—Red flags were much in evidence; a scheduled communist-sponsored general strike hampered normal services but little; clashes between marauders and police in the suburbs resulted in arrests; fiery speeches were given, but 10,000 especially-mobilized soldiers and 30,000 police had little to do but look on.

Vienna—One communist was reported killed near Nuerzschlag by a member of a motorcycle troop of 170 fascists from Italy enroute to Vienna to participate in celebrations. Otherwise May Day meant primarily the promulgation of a new constitution and the elevation of Prince von Starheim, Heimwehr leader, to be vice chancellor.

Madrid—Commerce was shut down, and a holiday spirit prevailed. Police cars and mounted guards patrolled Madrid ready for emergencies that did not arise.

Bridgeport, Conn.—A red flag flew over the city hall of this socialist-controlled community, but not for long.

Berlin—The high point of Germany's "Day of Labor" was the speech of Chancellor Adolf Hitler, in which he told 2,000 workers that the will of the German people has proved stronger than the distress which beset them in post-war days.

New York—Communists and socialists, carefully kept apart by 1,500 policemen, paraded and heard their respective orators call for discipline.

Norman Thomas, socialist leader, urged Americans to support an unofficial boycott against Austria in protest against the fascist dictatorship of Chancellor Dollfus.

Moscow—A military display of pickets, tanks, and airplanes celebrating a government change that had fought a government change that it had sought to control his employees collective bargaining attempts.

Near Scranton, Pa., 32 school teachers, who struck Wednesday when contracts were cancelled, returned to work, on assurance that no drastic salary cuts were in contemplation.

HARRY DECHOW HELPED PASS "BAD" MONEY

"Count Von Buelow" Says He Was Only Helping "A Friend"

Chicago, May 1.—(P)—Harry Dechow, who has called himself Count Von Buelow, today told a jury that he had helped to pass $53,000 of counterfeit money on Chicago banks, but that he thought he was merely assisting a friend to turn over "gangster money" to avoid income tax complications.

Dechow, former husband of Lottie Brenner, widow of wealthy Chicago Alderman, appeared in the court of Judge Charles G. Briggle as a witness against Dr. Valentine C. Burton of New York, charged with possessing counterfeit money.

He gave his name as Enrique Dechow-Buelow and said he had met Dr. Burton some time ago. Dr. Burton, he said, told him he had $100,000 that had been given him by a gangster whose life he saved.

"He told me that he did not wish to put the money into his own bank account, but suggested that I could help him bank it through various sources, and that all he wanted was 55 percent."

Dechow said he had no idea the money was counterfeit and agreed to the plan. After a trip to Mexico, he and Dr. Burton came to Chicago and passed the $53,000, he said. The money got to the banks through the accounts of widely known gamblers.

Dechow is a co-defendant on the counterfeit charge, but obtained a separate trial.

NOMINATE OFFICERS

East St. Louis, Ill., May 1.—(P)—Mrs. Louis E. Yager, Oak Park, Ill., today was nominated for President of the Illinois Federation of Music Clubs. The annual convention opened here.

The election of officers will close the convention tomorrow. Other nominations include Mrs. William S. Diggly of Decatur for first vice-president, Mrs. Leonard H. Sterne, Springfield, second vice president; Mrs. Lyman Dawson, Bloomington, fourth vice president; and Miss Reva Hoff, Danville, recording secretary.

REVENUE COLLECTIONS

Springfield, Ill., May 1.—(P)—V. Y. Dallman, collector of internal revenue here, today announced that his office had collected $1,239,553.02 in taxes on fermented malt liquors since beer was legalized April 7, 1933.

NEW STRIKES ARE REPORTED THROUGHT U. S.

Centers Of Previous Unrest Have Cooled Down

By the Associated Press

New strike moves appeared throughout the country's industries yesterday, as centers of previous unrest cooled down.

A strike of 4,000 longshoremen, centering at Houston, Tex., paralyzed shipping along the Texas coast. A white man was badly wounded when negro longshoremen were alleged to have fired into a white meeting at Lake Charles, La., in the strike area; seven negroes were held.

A strike march on coal miners at Lamar, Mo., called to enforce closing of two strip mines near Minden, Mo., did not materialize, as four National Guard companies and three airplanes were mobilized to contest the route.

Strikes of automotive workers in eight scattered cities depended on a conference begun yesterday between employers and employees under the national automobile labor board's supervision.

Strike threats hung over several oil company plants near Semonole, Okla., in quarrels over union recognition, wages and working conditions.

A strike of 500 teamsters in Rochester, N. Y., left the May 1 moving to a few independent truckers, while employers strove hastily to adjust differences over wages.

A strike of 2,000 carpenters, mostly on government buildings, broke out in Washington as the workers sought $1.37 an hour instead of their present $1. Four new buildings, already delayed two months by labor jurisdictional disputes, were again held up.

A strike of silk knitters in Indianapolis, now in its fourth week, seemed to near settlement as negotiations went forward over employees' demands for union recognition and a higher scale.

A strike of 1,000 clay workers near Steubenville, O., broke out over union recognition demands.

In Cleveland 2,000 gasoline station attendants and 2,000 worsted mill workers were still on strike, but were balloting on peace proposals.

Negotiations were also in progress in a strike of hosiery workers at Hartman, Tenn., and at Wilmington, Del., the Weirton Steel company was fighting a government charge that it had sought to control his employees collective bargaining attempts.

Near Scranton, Pa., 32 school teachers, who struck Wednesday when contracts were cancelled, returned to work, on assurance that no drastic salary cuts were in contemplation.

Boy's Body Washed Ashore As Mother Prays For Return

New York, May 1.—(P)—At day-break and at sunset for the last 75 days a woman has knelt on the sand at the foot of New York avenue in Long Beach and prayed.

She was praying for the return of the body of her 8-year-old son, Louis, who fell through the ice last February and was carried out into the bay while she was rescuing his playmate.

Tonight, at seven o'clock, his body was washed

A Corral For Kids

The management of the St. Louis zoo has decided to build a corral for lost children near the monkey house.
On a recent Sunday fifty children
got lost while watching the chimpanzees, and keepers and attendants were kept busy trying to locate parents.

Hereafter a lost child will be placed in the corral, and it will be up to the parents to come there and claim their own. It is safe to say that the corral will be a frequent place of rendezvous.

Children get lost when they stop to look at some interesting animals and forget about their parents. Then, when their interest in monkey or elephant subsides, they find themselves alone in a strange world. Waiting in a corral, where they will themselves be objects will not increase the comfort of the kiddies, but it will prove the best way to bring wandering parents to their rescue. We predict that many sincere family reunions will take place at the new children's corral at the zoo.

Restoring Life

The delicate business of restoring animal life after it is, to all intents and purposes extinct, is now attracting public attention. Dr. Robert E.
Cornish, in a University of California
laboratory, has restored a dead dog
to the point where it eats and drinks.
But the animal is still in a deep stupor and its thinking brain, if it has one, refuses to function.

Dr. Joseph G. Byrne, New York
neurologist, says that Dr. Cornish may have hit on something valuable.
He himself has revived two seemingly lifeless cats and a dog. However, the dog was blind, and both the cats were mentally out of balance. Dr. Byrne waited 20 minutes after the heart had stopped beating in one case, and ten minutes in another. He considers the stoppage of the heart as the beginning of death, and he wanted to make the test thoro.

These weird experiments recall the purely imaginary creation of the Frankenstein monster. The scientist who tried the experiment stole a criminal brain from a laboratory, and the results were anything but pleasant. Scientists who have carried on the restoration tests are not prepared to say that the delicate brain tissues can be brought back to normal functioning. The experiments are conducted with a view to finding means to restore persons who are victims of drowning, electric shock, asphyxiation or heart failure.

But there is no guarantee that it can be done, and if it is done that the person thus restored would not be better off dead. Scientists are dealing with life, as yet a mystery and not wholly explainable by any theory of mechanics or organic chemistry. They have much to learn, and their field of knowledge must include much more than at present if they are to make a success of restoring life, even to dumb animals.

Our Economic Health

There is no doubt that Uncle Sam is convalescing from an economic standpoint. There are certain indications that the patient is on the mend,
such as increased income taxes, better dividends to corporation stockholders, increased output of factories, increased department store sales, and a sufficient number of new cars on the highways to attract attention.

But there are other symptoms that show our economic health is not as good as it appears, that there are some fundamental ills that have not been reached by our physicians. There are three of these disturbing conditions that we ought to notice and remedy, if possible.

In the first place the number of families on relief reached an all-time high during the month of April, 4,700-000 families. This means that about 14,000,000 people in the United States had to be cared for by charity. Administrator of Relief Harry Hopkins says that the cotton control plan in the south has forced many tenant farmers to ask for relief. The reduction of wheat and corn acreage in Illinois and other states has deprived thousands of hands of work they usually get during the summer.

The second bad sign is the fact that, while grocery sales amount to more in dollars and cents, they are less in number of unit sales. The cheapening of the dollar has raised prices and caused the total money value of goods sold to appear larger.
But the people are really eating less,
and fewer people are consuming as much as they should because their buying power has been reduced.

In the third place, while production has risen to 86 percent of normal, sales have reached only 77 percent of normal. Thus the spread between production and consumption
has increased, the very thing the recovery program has sought to prevent.
If the spread continues to increase,
there will be over-production and a paralysis of industry.

The answer to this problem is not further limitation of production,
which would mean more unemployment and more people on the relief rolls; but the answer is an increase in buying power, so that the people can consume the surplus products.

There is something that should give concern, and that is the widening of the gulf between rich and poor. Greater incomes in the higher brackets, and reduction of income buying power in the lower brackets thru inflation and price shooting is responsible for this condition. It should be remembered that the middle class is not so strong as it once was, and making the rich richer and the poor poorer has been proved by history to be disruptive of the economic order.

Anglo-Saxon Team Work

Efforts have been made lately for a closer understanding of the United States and Great Britain with regard to two problems especially—disarmament and the peace of the Pacific.
On general principles it is desirable for America and Britain to cooperate in such matters. We understand each other better, and on the whole get along better, than do the other pair of big powers. When we are able to agree without sacrificing essential interests, we make more headway in international conferences.
Our navies are strong enough to control the seas. There is no desire in this country for a close alliance, but in vital matters a working agreement is often desirable.

However well agreed, the two continents alone could hardly dominate Europe in armament and other policies. That continent is now chaotic and full of potential wars. Uncle Sam naturally has to be wary of committing himself too far in that quarter.

The Pacific is another question.
Britain and America have greater stakes there than any other western powers. If we can agree on a reasonable and fair Pacific policy, there will be less danger of trouble with Japan.

Reynolds Not so Lucky

From the Detroit News.
The trustees of his father's tobacco millions have handed over 25 million dollars to young Richard J. Reynolds, Jr. It is called a birthday gift, but it may be gift is not the word. In fact, one's emotions toward it are apt to be a little mixed. Envy would be among them if the sum were something wild, but as it is we incline to think Mr. Reynolds a luckless youth who has a life of hard work ahead if he would keep from being possessed of his own wealth.

A 5 per cent return on his fortune will bring him 11 million dollars a year, of which the present income tax would take more than half, and if plans now afoot in Washington
materialize his net will be even less.
But this, unfortunately, will still leave him a shining mark for every sharper with a gold brick to sell,
every crank with an idea to finance,
every solicitor with a cause to promote and every case in quest of a donation. There will be no lack of winning helpers to lend a hand in disposing of his pile. He will need guards to shoo crackpots off the lawn,
and must view the most guileless
stranger with a dubious eye.
If, after this, any of his day is left,
he can give it over to the recent history of other vast American estates,
many of which have mysteriously
evaporated in the last fifteen years, while of others, like the Astor fortune in New York realty, it has become a question whether taxes have made them assets or liabilities. If he is able here and there to squeeze
in a carefree hour, he will do as well
as anyone can, in the circumstances.
It is hard lines for one so young to be haunted by money.

SO THEY SAY!

clining a gland examination.

All real men assume authority.
Only dunces wait to have it conferred.

—George Foster Peabody, trustee of

The power to declare war is a government monopoly. Just so the right to manufacture and possess those instruments without which modern warfare cannot be waged should also be a government monopoly.

WILL ROGERS
says:

To the Editor of the Journal and Courier:

San Francisco, Calif., May 1.—Well,
San Francisco, I bet that San Francisco was a city from the very first time it had a dozen settlers. Cities are like gentlemen, they are born, not made. You are either a city or you are not. Size has nothing to do with it. New York is "yokel," but San Francisco is "city" at heart. Boats coming from the east coast through the canal are crowded, people that didn't know that a boat went anywhere but Europe. The old Brete Hart, and Mark Twain gold mining districts are opening up again. Men are trading in their golf clubs for a pick and shovel and burro. Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

The New Deal
in Washington

Recovery Recipe of 1922 Is Sought by New Deal Heads
... Millionaire Spends to Help Hitler ... Trouble
Brews in Cuba ... Bread
Price Hike Threatened ...
Kickback Is Feared in Utilities Expose.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
Journal-Courier Washington Correspondent.

Washington, May 1.—The big trick
now, if the administration can put it over, is to reproduce conditions under which the country emerged from the depression of 1922.

This depression is worse, but in the back of Roosevelt's mind is the assurance of his economists that automobiles and building were biggest factors in that other recovery.

Automobiles have been booming
along and the National Emergency Council is supposed to add its big new construction program to the approaching PWA peak of activity to fill out the rest of the picture and take care of some of the 5,000,000 unemployed in the durable goods industries.

NEC has been stimulated by confidential advance figures from the Commerce Department's national real estate inventory which indicate a widespread housing shortage.

In seven of 10 cities investigators found more families doubled up than vacancies. How to get families undoubled isn't so simple, of course.

NEC still hides its plan. But reliable leaks indicate a system of government-insured loans, first for home renovation, then home building, and finally demolition of obsolete industrial plants and erection of new ones.

The first phase involves loans of from $200 to $2000 at 5 per cent. Insurance companies and banks will be tempted to finance new homes at a similar rate.

They must cut carrying and service
charges and extend amortization periods to perhaps 18 or 20 years.
NEC hopes it might seduce a billion dollars into construction by the end of the year.

Spends Money for Hitler

Dr. Otto H. F. Vollbehr, from whom Congress bought a famous collection of incunabula for the Library of Congress at a cost of $1-500,000, has found a way to spend some of the money. And in the United States, too!

He lives here at the expensive
Hay-Adams House and circulates
propaganda for the German Nazis.
His latest lengthy printed memorandum defends the Hitler campaign against the Jews.

Trouble Brews in Cuba

Trouble will be popping in Cuba
again after the sugar grinding season ends in May. Our officials have sighed and pretty well resigned themselves to that.

President Mendieta, whom we backed and materially aided, in the hope that he could handle a difficult situation, has proved weak and inde-cisive. The island remains in a bad economic way and it seems that any benefit Cuba is due to derive from the new American sugar act won't be felt before next year.

Differences between factions in the Havana coalition government—especially the old line politicians and the
A.B.C.—are as sharp as ever.

Secretary Hull is placing such bets as he dares make on Batista, leader in that spectacular "revolution of sergeants" who is still in full control of the army. That remarkable ex-sergeant is the "strong man" of Cuba,
but apparently has no political ambitions.

If pressure on Mendieta becomes too
hot and conditions too dangerous,
patriotic Batista probably will swing his support elsewhere, as he did when he deserted Grau San Martin.

Bread Price Rise Seen

Bakers are privately threatening to raise bread prices after the bakery code becomes effective in the near future. Perhaps they won't, though.

Skilled workers so predominate
that minimum wages will mean little added cost, though shorter hours are something else. Liberal estimates of labor cost in a loaf of bread place it at one cent. New costs wouldn't mean anywhere near another cent.

A recent bread price boost in nearby Baltimore was met by angry protests from a league of housewives, who threatened to make their own. So the price was dropped again.

Kickback in Expose

A group of Federal Trade Commission fellows were discussing, a bit ruefully, the other night their recent sensational disclosures as to operations of Associated Gas & Electric and the Doherty interests.

Not that they minded the exposures. But those two big groups are almost the only ones outside the J. P.
Morgan utility domain and anything tending to weaken them might tend to bring them under Morgan control.

Allegations of Associated's activities among New York state politicians already have instigated a receivership suit.

Jerseyville Legion
Cited for Services

Jerseyville, April 30.—Worthy Post, Number 492, American Legion, of Jersey county was cited for meritorious service in the recently terminated
membership drive which concluded April 1st. The citation was issued to the local post at its meeting in the American Legion hall on South State street Thursday evening.

The post had been assigned as its allotment a membership of fifty seven for the present year. The allotment was high based on the past three year average of members taken in and in the case of the Jersey county organization was high due to the fact that the district convention was held here last year and many new members had been added during that occasion.

The local post under the leadership of its commander, H. E. Dabbe went over the top in the membership drive, terminating with a total of seventy.

The wording of the citation is as follows: The American Legion, Department of Illinois, Edward A. Hayes Citation, Radio Roundup. The officers and individual members of Worthy Post, No. 492, located at Jerseyville, Illinois are hereby commended for meritorious service rendered the American Legion as hereinafter mentioned.

The officers and individual members of this post have succeeded in reaching or surpassing their 1934 allotment during the membership drive, this reaffirming their part in the American Legion and attaining the station of an honor post.

The worthy achievement has enabled the American Legion to promote the work in the interest of Community, State and Nation and to better assist us in securing aid, assistance and justice for our disabled comrades and their dependents.

Signed Edward A. Hayes,
Honorary Membership Chairman.

ville at 2 p. m. Sunday, came to Carrollton at 4 p. m. and confirmed one of

WHITE HALL GETS READY FOR ANNUAL ALL COUNTY MEET

Nine Schools to Gather Friday to Compete for Title Now Held by White Hall—Expect Battle For Points.

White Hall, May 1.—(Special)—White Hall is getting ready for the annual All-County high school track and field championship meet, to be held here for the first time in several years. The meet will be held Friday over the White Hall high track, which has been prepared during the past year.

The meet, which was one of the outstanding meets of its character long ago, and which fell into the discard, only to be revived four years ago, promises to be one of the high lights of the Greene county athletic season this spring. One of the stiffest battles of the year is expected, with any of four schools figured in the running for the crown.

White Hall copped the championship last year when seven of the 14 records went by the boards. The home team will be pressed from three sides during the meet, Carrollton, Roodhouse and Greenfield coming in for points which White Hall copped last year.

Excellent records await the crowd of approximately 125 athletes who will take part in the meet. The first events will be run off at 1:30 o'clock, with qualifying heats for the shorter runs and hurdle races. Field events will go on through to completion. The seven records established last year were the hundred yard dash, 220 yard dash, 440 yard run, mile run, 220 and 120 yard hurdles, pole vault and javelin throw.

The nine schools entered are Greenfield, Carrollton, White Hall, Roodhouse, Kane, Patterson, Rockbridge, Eldred and Hillview.

FITZPATRICKS WIN FROM ILLINOIS 3-1 IN SEVEN INNINGS

Lefty Honn and Henry Zaber Meet in Pitching Duel With Each Hurler Allowing But Four Safe Cracks.

Springfield, May 1.—(Special)—Henry Zaber, Illinois College, and Lefty Honn, of the Fitzpatrick Lumberjacks hooked up in a seven inning mound duel here this afternoon with the former Three I league and Eastern Teachers College hurler getting a 3-1 decision in a well played game. A large number of the Illinois College alumni now located in Springfield turned out to witness the game, which was of the practice variety. No admission was charged.

"Ham" Olive, another former Three I leaguer, decided the game with a home run, driving out a hard hit ball which rolled under a parked automobile in left center field. Illinois made two misplays, each of which proved to be costly.

Zaber and Honn each allowed four hits, the left handed flinger putting a cousin sign on the Blueboys by striking out 12 of them before the game was over. Only Woods, Winn and Watts were able to smack the pellet for safe blows. Watts marking up two good cracks. Smargass led Fitzpatrick hitting with a pair of safeties, M. Schaeve and Olive getting the others.

Overcome Bad Start to Whip Visitors With Slashing Hit Attack in Fourth Inning

Overcoming a wobbly and almost disastrous start, Routt high's baseball team yesterday afternoon opened its home season on the Nichols Park diamond with a rousing 13-7 victory over Carlville high. Carlville took a 6 to 1 lead at one stage of the game, but the Rockets suddenly hopped on "Mike" Selvo and out of their barrage of hits came the victory.

Routt wildness spotted the visitors two runs in the opening frame, and went a long way toward giving them four more runs in the third. Routt kept in the running with timely hitting, but broke out with a hitting rally that netted seven tallies and the lead in the fourth. The Rockets added a pair more in the fifth, and the game was called at the end of the first half of the seventh.

Joe Tapoick, who went to the rubber for the Rockets, kept the Carlville team well in hand during the opening innings, but he received wobbly and wild support. The Rockets first committed a flock of fielding errors and then made a number of errors of omission before they settled down to their best brand of ball. Tapoick allowed eight hits in the six innings he worked, John Pacotti holding the Carlville team easily in the single frame he flung from the mound.

Selvo, a side arm tosser, lasted for two innings before the Rockets began bombarding him. Joe Blasse started the fireworks with a home run off the left center field hill, and a pair of balks by Selvo with men on third contributed two more runs to the Rocket cause.

Eleven men went to the plate in the fourth when six hits rattled off the Routt bats. Tapoick opened the round with a single, and before the slugging was over Schneider, Blasse, Lawrence and Pacotti had collected triples and George Geanetos a home run down the left field foul line, scoring two men ahead of him. The management intends using as many local players in the line-up as possible, as they are confident that this section has many layers who are as promising a set of coming stars, as can be found.

The regular players who will start the season are: Thin and Schuman, pitchers; Mehl, E. Kirchbach, Farrell and Munnebrock, infield; Smith, Gers, Stout, Volles and Keller, outfield and Robinson, catcher; John Kirby, catcher or in or outfield. There are a number of substitutes.

The starting time of the games has been changed to 2 p. m. All games will be played at home, giving Carrollton players Sunday games, all season. Managers and those interested in good, clean baseball will please write the manager.

The 1934 season opened Sunday with Jerseyville as opponents at Green park in the south part of Carrollton. The Merchants with scarcely any practice this spring on account of inclement weather, had easy sailing in winning by a score of 8 to 4. After the fourth inning the local boys never were in danger.

SET-OFFS ASKED IN SUIT AGAINST BANK

A chancery complaint asking a set-off of assets against liabilities was filed in circuit court Tuesday by the Withee Service Stations, Inc., and the Jacksonville-Springfield Transportation company against the Avers National Bank.

The complaints ask the court to permit an asset of $1,800 to be set-off against a liability of $3,275; also a $2,427.00 asset against $2,010.75.

The action was filed by Bellatti, Samuel & Moriarty.

Rockets got another brace of points in the fifth off a pair of walks and a single.

In the sixth Routt held Carlville scoreless despite the fact that they collected three safe blows. The first three men to face Tapoick in the inning got singles, and only one man got past second.

V.I. Ball Retiring After 47 Years as Burlington Agent

V. I. Ball, agent for the Burlington railroad at Concord, the junction point of the Burlington's main lines from Paducah, Ky., and from St. Louis, retired from active service on Monday, April 30, after forty-seven years of meritorious service. Mr. Ball has reached the age of 70—the retirement age under the pension plan of the railroad—but he spent the day as he had spent over seventeen thousand others on duty in his office, hale, alert and in good spirits.

Forty-seven years is a long time; during that period of time the United States has had ten presidents but the little city of Concord has had but one railroad agent—the man who came there in 1887 as a young man and who remained through the years because he liked railroading and because his particular office, being a junction point after the Burlington built a connecting line to Jacksonville to connect its St. Louis line with the Southern Illinois coal fields furnished about every variety in railroading that one would wish for.

He is seventy years old—three score and ten and the age when "penitence is remitted and when opinions may be given with apology for their origin" but you would hardly know it by looking at the man. His hair is dark with only a faint suggestion of gray and he walks like a man of forty.

He has seen depressions before and doesn't thing the younger generation is going to the dogs and has an abiding faith in the future of the railroads. He loves to talk with his friends about anything under the sun—except himself. A man who has seen the growth of railroading for forty-seven years from on active vantage point could tell some interesting things—if he would but his greatest concern at the present time is to get caught up on one of his hobbies—fishing.

He passed his seventieth birthday working at his job, stoically unimpressed by the excitement his retirement was causing among persons who had the time to pause and ponder and who could see a beautiful moral in it all. The one thing that seemed to affect him above all was the delivery to him by special messenger of a letter from his chief who expressed the regret of the railroad to see him leave, but the day was a wonderful one for fishing, and he said when asked to talk about himself "I'm way behind on my fishing!"

April Unusual for Lack of Rainfall

This section received only 1.18 inches of rainfall during April, according to the weather summary for the month announced by the Norbury Sanatorium co-operative weather station. Precipitation occurred on four days of the month, and the proverbial "April showers" were conspicuous by their absence. The heaviest rain was 0.44 of an inch on the 26th. There was a trace of snow on the 11th.

The maximum temperature for the month was 80 degrees on April 3 and the minimum was 21 degrees on the 25th. Light frosts occurred on the 14th, 26th, and 28th. There were dust storms on the 19th and 23rd. Prevailing winds for the month were from the south and from the north.

The mean maximum temperature for the month was 67.7, the mean minimum 50.7, and the mean 53.7. Thus the month was marked by an abnormal lack of moisture, dust storms, and an unusual amount of wind.

There were 20 clear days in April, five partly cloudy, and five cloudy. There were thunder storms on the 5th, 10th, and 11th.

White Hall was represented in the city Tuesday by Mr. and Mrs. John Coe.

WASHINGTON AND THE NATIONAL GOVERNMENT

The Governmental Operating Plant
And How Its Business Is Conducted.

By Congressman
JAMES A. MEEKS
Danville, Illinois.

In beginning this article I make correction of a statement in my third article to the effect that since its establishment there have been nearly one thousand members of the House of Representatives. It should have read more than eight hundred. This body is not a debating society. It deals with serious business touching many aspects of human and property relations. More than nine thousand bills, as well as approximately three hundred resolutions and three thousand seven hundred petitions have been introduced in this Congress. Many of them are overlapping and duplications. It is evident that comparatively few of them can be acted upon.

This is a big country and within its borders are 125,000,000 people, interested in an untold number of things. This does not include territories and national possessions. There is the Atlantic slope east of the Alleghenies, extending from Canada to Key West, the southern tip of Florida. West of this are these mountains. Extending westward, from thence to the mighty Rockies, is the great middle west. Beyond this is mountain region and the Pacific slope, reaching from Mexico to the Canadian line. Add to this the great Southwest and remaining Southern states, and we have the largest contiguous area ever under the flag of a Republic. For more than generous measure, add Alaska, the Hawaiian and Virgin Islands, Canal Zone, Porto Rico, the Philippines, and various little islands and stations elsewhere. In all this vast domain are great cities, villages, and all sizes of urban communities between. In it are vast agricultural expanses, mining and industrial areas, transportation systems of rail, water, air highways reaching all inhabitable points in the country, educational systems post roads, postal facilities, wholesale and retail merchandising, commercial institutions, municipal problems and countless other activities. Abroad are all our international relationships, including commerce and travel on seas, exchange, debts, peace, war trade agreements, and various other interests with which this nation and its people are concerned and about which Congress must legislate. In every civilized land are interests of the United States with outposts in remote and undeveloped regions. In this tremendous and complicated web of human relations and its unnumbered ramifications our government is greatly concerned and must, from time to time, enact laws and establish regulations touching its part in this vast scheme of human affairs.

In order to deal with the infinite variety of problems presented by all this complicated pattern of human concerns it was necessary that our large legislative body of more than four hundred members, which we call the House of Representatives, should set up machinery to enable it to deal efficiently with its myriads of problems. This has been done through a system of appropriate regular committees of which the House has forty-seven. To each of these is referred the various bills embraced in its particular jurisdiction for consideration. Illustrating the system of committees I mention a number as follows: Rules, the most powerful of all, which sets up from time to time the plans for consideration and disposition of legislation; Ways and Means, having charge of revenue legislation; Agriculture, to which is referred matters pertaining to that industry; Appropriations, dealing with legislation pertaining to the expenses of operating the Government machinery; Banking and Currency, Interstate and Foreign Commerce, Education, Foreign Affairs, Judiciary, Labor, Military and Naval Affairs, Rivers and Harbors, etc., etc. These committees meet for the consideration of the many bills referred to them, and make reports and recommendations to the House, where they are disposed of. In addition are special committees formed to deal with special items and circumstances which arise from time to time and cannot usually be foreseen. Committees meet frequently and give earnest attention to the matters before them. Here is where most of the hard work is done. The committees conduct hearings, where evidence is given upon details of measures before them, and may refer subjects, or the entire matter to subcommittees for examination and report back to them. One desiring to protest measures, or provisions of a measure, should set forth both facts and arguments, and not mere statements that they are objectionable or undesirable. Congressmen can present these to proper committees during their deliberations.

Trick Brings Liberty to Three Ohio Convicts

A ruse gained freedom for three convicts at Ohio state prison, Columbus, despite heavy guard maintained to bulk a John Dillinger rescue party. Ascending the wall on pretense of repairing the searchlight, upper left, they overpowered Guard Frank Alkire, shown holding a gun similar to the one which they took from him, and slid down a cable at the northwest tower, upper right, then fleeing in an auto held in wait nearby. The three fugitives are shown below, left to right: Arthur Koontz, 33, auto thief; Rufus Deeds, 28, robber; and Martin Schmidt, 35, bank robber.

One can conjecture the enormous labor required of a legislative body dealing with more than nine thousand bills.

When an important measure is submitted to the House it is frequently accompanied by a rule presented by the Rules Committee and adopted for its consideration. This rule determines the conditions under which the members must proceed for its disposition. It fixes the period allotted for debate and this is usually divided between the chairman of the committee reporting the measure and its ranking minority leaders who in turn divide the time among those they wish to speak to others who desire to be heard in support of or in opposition.

Often very brief time is given for discussion, and may extend from one minute all the way up to one hour among various members, those having the longest time being the chairman or ranking minority members of the committee in charge. Sometimes, by unanimous consent, a member speaks one, two, or more minutes, and if no objection is interposed, may revise and extend his remarks in the Congressional Record. Often such remarks as printed in the Record are much more extended and voluminous than delivered on the floor. Often, as printed in the Record, they do not disclose accurately what was said in the discussions.

Some debates are tedious, even tiresome, and as unromantic as the multiplication table, often accompanied by a mass of details, but they may be important and have strong bearing upon matters under discussion. Much useful legislation is enacted this way. In these debates there is no great opportunity to display oratory and rhetorical elegance. These rights are reserved for occasions of sentiment where emotions are an important feature in effects desired to be produced. These occasions are rare. The most skilled artists find it difficult to move their hearers by gilding sunbeams and painting rainbows.

Often the House resolves itself into a Committee of the Whole on the State of the Union, for the purpose of acting upon an important measure. This is a method adopted for general debate during the fixed period, under which is known as the five minute rule, under which amendments may be offered, discussed and voted upon.

The Speaker designates someone to occupy the Chair during this proceeding. When it is completed the Speaker resumes the Chair and the Committee of the Whole reports to him what was done, after which the House proceeds to dispose of the amendments, and the bill as amended if amendments have been adopted in the Committee of the Whole. The usual method of voting is by calling upon those in favor to say "Aye." Those opposed to say "No." This is not a record vote. If any are not satisfied with the result a vote may be taken by tellers. This is done by one member who favors the Ayes and one who favors the Nays standing opposite each other at the end of an aisle. Members pass between them and are counted, first the Ayes and then the Nays. This is not a record vote. There may be a demand for roll call, and if a sufficient number favor it the call is made by a clerk, and each member votes as his name is called. This is a record vote and shows how each member voted. This proceeding is resorted to when it is desired to place each member on record. At times when an important bill is presented under a rule for its disposition a demand may be made by a member for the Ayes and Nays and a call of the roll ensues. I have given this outline of procedure on important measures for those interested in knowing in a general way how business is conducted in the House, but no attempt is made in this brief article to give full details. The outline will be enough for those wishing a brief summary of how Congress acts upon legislation, but cannot undertake to explain the various parliamentary maneuvers sometimes involved in the contest. The House has a parliamentarian who advises the Speaker on knotty questions. When Champ Clark was Speaker his son, Bennett Clark, now a member of the United States Senate, acted as his parliamentarian.

There is an inspiring scene when some legislation of general interest is up for a vote, as was the case when the Veterans' amendments were acted upon. Nearly every member was in place. The galleries were filled, quiet prevailed everywhere, and deep suspense continued until the last name was called. Several times in the last year scenes like this were enacted. The clerks were busy, the newspaper men above the Speaker's rostrum were intent on getting every detail, and telegraph instruments outside were perfectly audible, the ringing of telephone bells in the cloak room added to the tenseness of the situation, and after the tabulating machines finished their work of the pounding of the Speaker's gavel for order, the sound of his voice declaring the result, a moment of complete silence, and then bedlam. Newspapers and radio flashed the result everywhere. There is something uncanal and startling about the swift action of telegraph and telephone. One day while the roll was being called for a vote upon an important measure a member stepped quickly into a telephone booth and called a party three thousand miles away upon the subject, and returned to his place in time to vote. This remote conversation was held over a little wire in a low tone of voice. The entire performance lasted less than ten minutes.

A Congressman has very little leisure. There is plenty to be done. All work is not done in the committees or in the House. Besides these there are more than one hundred Government departments, with many of which he must have contact.

AURELIE PROCTOR PRESENTS RECITAL

Aurelie Proctor, pianist, pupil of Mahalia McGhee, appeared in senior recital in Music Hall Tuesday night. Miss Proctor's previous appearances have been so successful that last night's audience anticipated much. Nor were they disappointed. The program itself would have been a credit to a seasoned artist, beginning as it did with the Waldstein sonata, including a group of Schubert and Chopin numbers, and culminating in the brilliant Rubinstein concerto.

Miss Proctor's fingers are sure, her rhythm and phrasing are well marked. Her interpretation is authentic and convincing. To these qualities one must also add the warm, full tone that never fails amid technical difficulties. Perhaps the greatest charm of Miss Proctor's playing is the enthusiasm which makes the performance of a recital not a task but a joyous expression. In this characteristic she is a true pupil of her teacher. In the closing number, the allegro from the Rubinstein concerto, Miss Proctor had the support of Miss McGhee who gave a splendid account of the orchestral parts on the second piano.

ITALY HAS DECIDED TO INCREASE POWER OF MILITARY FORCE

(Copyright, 1934 by the Associated Press)

Rome, May 1.—Italy has determined to increase the power of her military while at the same time seeking an arms agreement under which Germany would be permitted moderate rearmament, the Associated Press learned today.

Henceforth, it was disclosed, the Italian government will proceed in military matters along two lines:

First, to plead the cause of limitation of armaments at present levels—with certain rearmament of Germany;

Second, to add the greatest possible amount of efficiency to Italian military forces.

The policy was enunciated by high officials in commenting upon King Victor Emmanuel's declaration Saturday for a strengthened military arm.

These two courses are not incompatible, the officials declared, adding that the king did not mean to imply he had lost hope in Premier Mussolini's arms limitation plan.

DEMAND LIQUOR TAX, PRICES BE REDUCED

Washington, May 1.—(AP)—The cry for slashes in liquor taxes and prices to combat bootlegging reached official ears today.

Both Joseph H. Choate, Jr., alcohol control administrator, and J. M. Duran, supervisor of the distillers' control authority, agreed that a tax reduction to bring down prices might go a long way in undermining the illegal liquor business.

A demand was made at the same time for abolition or reorganization of Choate's agency. Twelve house members, eleven of them Democrats, joined in a protest to President Roosevelt that the alcohol control administration "has been guilty of setting up foolish, piddling and annoying regulations, due to the fact that some of the members of the FACA have no knowledge of the business."

Outlook for Wagner Bill Becomes Darker

BY JAMES COPE

Washington, May 1.—(AP)—Further administration efforts at revising the Wagner labor bill were projected today but the outlook for the passage of an acceptable measure at this session of congress was far from good.

As conferences were resumed today between Senator Wagner (D-N.Y.), Secretary Perkins, Hugh S. Johnson, and Donald Richberg of NRA, there was no indication that the group was near agreement on what constituted workable legislation.

President Roosevelt asked this special committee to get together before congress goes further with the bill.

In addition, American Federation of Labor leaders moved to consolidate their position for a government ban on all company unions. The present Wagner bill would outlaw employer-dominated company unions.

The A.F. of L. made no secret of its readiness to oppose any labor bill failing to mention its demands. With the support its members command in congress this made prospects of passage in the short remaining time problematical.

The federation will assemble its executive council here tomorrow for a conference at which the Wagner bill will be an important topic.

The NRA labor advisory board, composed almost exclusively of federation men under the acting chairmanship of William Green, A.F. of L. president, met again today to follow up a week's discussion of Johnson's rejection of their demand for virtual control of all nominations to the labor boards being set up under each code.

Still another problem awaiting settlement was the renewed demand at the White House by Green and Chairman Connery of the House labor committee for the thirty-hour-week bill. Green contended this step necessary to take up a 10,000,000 unemployment slack.

KATHARINE HEPBURN
FILES FOR DIVORCE
IN MERIDA, YUCATAN

By CARL S. MENDENEZ
Associated Press Foreign Staff
Merida, Yucatan, May 1.—(AP)—Katharine Hepburn, red-haired star of the screen and stage, is stopping at a hotel here pending decision on her petition for divorce from her business-husband, Ludlow Owen Smith of New York.

Mrs. Hepburn arrived April 22, the Associated Press correspondent learned, accompanied by her friend, Laura Harding.

She went unrecognized until last night.

Then, readily admitting her identity, Miss Hepburn discussed pictures but declined to comment on her divorce action. A decree is expected to be granted within a few days.

She registered at the Hotel Itza under the name of Katharine Smith and through a local attorney, Francisco Arcevedo Guillermo, filed suit immediately for a divorce.

The action sets forth that she and her husband were married December 12, 1928, in West Hartford, Conn.

"I am not accustomed to making statements on my private life," said the actress, in declining to talk about the separation.

She added she was interested in getting an idea of what Yucatan is like.

MARKET MADE UP OF WANTS, NOT NEEDS - WORSHAM

Business Leaders Must Grasp New Ideas Says C. of C. Speaker

Ninety percent of today's market is made up of wants and not needs, James A. Worsham told members of the Chamber of Commerce and employees from Jacksonville stores last night at a meeting in the New Dunlap hotel, pointing out that Jacksonville's future rests upon the ability of business leaders to grasp new ideas, and to develop the more than 90 percent of unused brain power.

The idea prevalent a few years ago that the nation could exist without work has been blown up, the speaker pointed out. During those years speculation on a margin was not thought to be gambling, and many thousands of people have learned that it is not gambling, because in gambling the spectacular at least has a chance.

Babylon and Nineveh were cities approximating the size of New York and Chicago a long time ago, Mr. Worsham said in stressing the point that it was necessary to be alert for new ideas, but the world changed, and now these cities are only empty shells. Venice is another of the cities famous in another day for its trade, but now is forgotten as a center of commerce.

Competition no longer is the life of trade. Cooperation has been substituted for competition in the business life of today, he declared.

Launching into a discussion of salesmanship, he said the world has obtained the wrong impression of a salesman. The art of selling, in Mr. Worsham's opinion, is finding out what the customer wants, and then proving that the product for sale will do the required work.

There are enough wants in this nation to keep every factory busy for the next 100 years, he continued. It is the task of the salesman to recall these wants, either through contact, advertising, or window displays, and to keep on recalling these wants until the sale is made in the customer's mind.

The task of the American business man today is to carry the re-creation of wants to the man who has money. There is just as much money in this nation as there ever was, and it is up to business to get this money working again.

Business men should cease crying over conditions, he declared. If business was not a problem, it could be handled by boys and girls.

Discussing a community objective, he said that it was every person's duty to contribute something toward that objective. When the city is dead, there will be no more calls upon persons for their time, efforts and money.

Preceding the lecture, the Hilo Hawaiians gave a concert.

USAGE OF MILK COMPLICATES A. A. A. PROGRAM

Adjustment Hinges Upon Methods of Marketing, Report

Working out a dairy production adjustment program for farmers in Morgan county and other sections of the United States hinges largely upon the difference between the two methods of marketing milk and the returns which these methods bring to producers, it is pointed out by the Farm Adviser I. E. Paretti.

Less than half of the 4 3-4 billion pounds of milk that are produced annually in Illinois is marketed by farmers as whole milk or cream for direct consumption in its original fluid form. The rest, exclusive of what is used on farms, is sold for manufacture into goods which will keep for longer periods, the so-called "manufactured dairy products." It was explained. The same thing holds true for the United States as a whole.

The relationship between the two chief market classes of dairy products has an important bearing upon a solution of the dairy problem, it is pointed out by the extension service of the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois. Surpluses in fluid milk markets find their way into manufactured products and tend to build up reserve stocks. In turn, the can on the grocery shelf competes with the bottled milk sold to consumers.

"Consequently, the solution requires something more than raising prices only for producers of fluid milk. The entire dairy industry must be considered as a unit."

Milk sold for direct consumption in fluid form frequently is spoken of as the "base" milk supply. Milk which is not so consumed is frequently called "surplus" and is used in the production of butter, cheese and other manufactured dairy products. This so-called "surplus" milk includes not only excess fluid milk on city markets but also large quantities of milk produced in regions away from city milk markets.

Sales of fluid milk for direct consumption bring a higher price to the producer than do sales for manufacture into butter, cheese, ice cream or condensed, evaporated or dried milk. An increasingly large group who distributed their own fluid milk, as retailers, received a still higher proportion of the price consumers paid for milk. Those who made and sold farm butter gained a price midway between the levels for sales of fluid milk to dealers and sales of cream as butterfat for manufactured markets. High sanitary requirements and other factors increase the costs of production for direct consumption on the fluid milk markets, and in some degree these costs offset the higher prices received by this class of producers.

The problem is further complicated by the fact that the number of farmers who sell their dairy products as butterfat or as farm butter is nearly twice as great as the number who sell whole milk for direct consumption. And yet the one-third of the producers who sold whole milk for direct consumption in 1932, either as producer-distributors or through sales to dealers, got approximately three times as many dollars for their product as did the two-thirds of the farmers who sold on the butterfat market. Most butterfat producers consider dairying as a sideline, and their average production is small as compared with that of fluid milk producers.
